Artisan Group™ Member Fine Line Pacific Teams up for Race For The Cure

Seattle, WA – June 1, 2010--Fine Line Pacific in Kent, WA and Kitchen Plus in Bellevue have joined “Team Michelle” with Michelle Millman, news reporter and anchor for KIRO 7, for the 2010 Susan G. Komen Puget Sound Race for the Cure on June 6, at 9:15am. Millman, currently battling breast cancer, is a close friend of Mike Birdwell, Vice President of Fine Line Pacific.

Forty-six participants have signed up to join Team Michelle, 32 of which are from Fine Line Pacific and Kitchen Plus. “We are very pleased with the turnout and hope this will continue to be a company tradition,” says Mike Birdwell, Vice President of sales and marketing, Fine Line Pacific. “It is an honor to be able to participate in this event because breast cancer has affected so many of our friends and families.”

“I am overwhelmed by the support of my life-long friend Mike Birdwell,” says Millman. “These two local companies—Fine Line Pacific and Kitchens Plus—are helping me spread the word about breast cancer so that we can make a difference.”

The Komen Race for the Cure is a community event that honors and memorializes breast cancer survivors, co-survivors and those that have lost their lives to the disease. The Race also plays a vital role in raising funds for research, education, prevention, advocacy and treatment.

“Simply put, we are all doing this to support a great cause,” says Joshua Brookshier, Sales Manager, Kitchen Plus. “My mother-in-law is a breast cancer survivor with clean bill of health for almost 17 years now, but not all families are as lucky as ours. Our family and Kitchen Plus are honored to be a part of the Race for the Cure.”

Fine Line Pacific, founded in 2001, operates the Northwest’s largest and most advanced countertop fabrication facility at their headquarters in Kent, WA. The privately-held company employs nearly 200 people throughout their locations including additional facilities in Lake Oswego, OR and Spokane, WA. Recently, the company joined forces with Floform, Western Canada’s leading countertop fabricator. Fine Line Pacific is located at 22445 76th Ave S, Kent, WA 98032.
